Weather

Could be worse:

Today, partly sunny. High in the mid-30s. Tonight, partly cloudy. Low 20 to 25. Wednesday, increasing clouds. High around 40. Chance of rain 20 percent.

Outside Campus

Rape reported:

A 20-year-old University student reported she was raped by a man she knew at a party in a Thurstin Avenue residence Sunday night.

According to the police report, the woman said she knew the man by first name only and was talking to him at the party. The man allegedly asked her if she would like to see his record collection, which they had been discussing, in his bedroom.

Once inside the man's bedroom, he allegedly began kissing her and undressing her and then raped her.

The woman told police she does not want to file charges or have police investigate the incident any further.

Christmas spirit:

Anderson Hall residents are spreading the Christmas spirit this season by adopting a family. A food basket with staple foods is being donated by the residence hall, located in Harshman Quadrangle, with the help of the United Way.

Food Town grocery store donated the turkey, and the Christmas dinner will be complete with trimmings given by Anderson residents. The hall is also donating money and canned goods to the family.

Carved up:

WASHINGTON -- This is no joke.

President Bush brought "Saturday Night Live" comic Dana Carvey to the White House, put him up in the Lincoln Bedroom and summoned the White House staff to the East Room Monday for a 10-minute reprise of Carvey's Bush imitations.

It caught nearly all of them by total surprise.

The Marine Band broke into "Hail to the Chief" and the diminutive comedian strode into the East Room just ahead of the president and Barbara Bush.

"I was staying in the Lincoln Bedroom last night and I couldn't resist getting on the phone and I called up the Secret Service as the president: 'Feel like going jogging tonight. In the nude,'" Carvey said.

He went through his whole repertoire of wild, exaggerated Bush hand gestures while Bush, his wife, Barbara, and his staff roared with laughter.

Two BGSU trustees dismissed

by Julie Tagliaferro administration reporter

Mileti

Moorehead

Two University trustees have been issued letters from Gov. George Voinovich informing them that they are ineligible to be on the Board of Trustees because they are not Ohio residents, The BG News has learned.

Voinovich wrote letters to trustee members Nick Mileti and Herbert Moorehead after state attorney general Lee Fisher notified him the two men did not meet the state's qualifications to be in public office. The governor wrote the letters because by law, university trustee members are appointed by the governor.

According to a document written by Fisher to Voinovich in March, only electors can serve in public office.

An elector must be an Ohio resident and a registered voter who has voted in at least one state election in the last four years.

"If a person goes into another state and while there exercises the right of a citizen by voting, he shall be considered to have lost his residence in this state," Fisher stated in his report.

The report also stated if a member of a board or commission is found to be a nonresident of Ohio, then he or she is ineligible to continue serving in that position.

"If a person is constitutionally ineligible to serve as an officer, the appointment of such a person to that office also is a nullity," Fisher stated. "The effect of the appointment is the same as if no appointment had been made."

Fisher concluded if the governor appointed a nonresident of the state to a board or commission, the appointment is void.

Although Fisher wrote this report last spring, his investigation of public officials did not result in action toward the two trustees by Voinovich until last week.

According to sources, University President Paul Olscamp said Monday in a faculty meeting that he had received notification from the attorney general and governor's office that Mileti and Moorehead are ineligible to be trustees.

Olscamp said neither he nor any other University official was consulted before the decision was made because the governor's office executes all decisions relating to the trustees.

"It's a legal issue between the board, attorney general and governor," Olscamp said.

Olscamp said Mileti and Moorehead have been dedicated and hard-working trustee members who have served for several years.

"They are very good trustees and as far as I am concerned, I'd like to see them continue [in their positions]," he said.

Mileti has worked in broadcasting and sports, as well as in real estate and law. He earned a bachelor of arts degree from the University in 1953 and received an honorary degree in business administration in 1975.

Mileti founded the Cleveland Cavaliers basketball team and has produced movies.

He was appointed to the Board of Trustees in 1985 and has been active with the University Alumni Association. Mileti lives in Beverly Hills, Calif., and has lived in Rome, Italy.

Moorehead received a bachelor's degree in liberal arts from

Pay raises for faculty?

Trustees to decide Friday on possible 5 percent increase by Julie Tagliaferro and Michael Zawacki

staff reporters

"It is safe to say that the board will be discussing salary increases. But it is unclear whether or not they will be taking any action."

Christopher Dalton, vice president of planning and budgeting

University faculty may be receiving salary increases, depending on decisions to be made by the Board of Trustees Friday.

Christopher Dalton, vice president for planning and budgeting, said no final decision about the salary increases will be made until that meeting.

There has been talk of an increase ranging anywhere from 3 to 5 percent. In addition, there has been uncertainty about whether the proposed increase will be retroactive.

Philip Mason, vice president for university relations, said if salary adjustments occur, a portion of them would probably be retroactive to July 1 -- the beginning of the fiscal year.

At an informal meeting with faculty last week, University President Paul Olscamp said the increases would be retroactive.

Dalton said the administrators may have been speculating, and he is not certain all of the increases will be retroactive.

"There is a lot of discussion going on right now," Dalton said. "There is no final decision at this point [whether] it will be retroactive."

The amount of the increase has also not been determined because the University administration and the Board of Trustees are waiting to see if more budget cuts may occur and what the state subsidy calculations will be, Dalton said.

Mason said the administration is trying to get the most out of what is being made available to it financially by the state.

"Details are still being hammered out," Mason said. "Hopefully the Board of Trustees will accept [Olscamp's] recommendations."

Ron Stoner, chairman of the BGSU-Faculty Association, said he has heard about the proposed salary increases but will not take them for granted until after the Board of Trustees has endorsed it.

"It's a step in the right direction," Stoner said.

The Ohio Board of Regents is scheduled to meet Dec. 14. From their preliminary meetings this week, Dalton said the University could receive feedback about the current budget situation. This would help the board decide whether to go ahead with salary increases beginning in January.

"It is safe to say that the board will be discussing salary increases," Dalton said. "But it is unclear whether or not they will be taking any action."

Hearing delayed in murder case

Umbel wants off antipsychotic drugs

by Chris Miller
courts reporter

A hearing Monday afternoon to decide whether accused murderer John Umbel should be administered antipsychotic drugs was continued pending a psychiatric evaluation.

Judge Donald DeCessa presided over the hour-long hearing in Wood County Common Pleas Court, which included testimony from a psychiatrist who treated Umbel prior to his arrest in March.

Umbel, who has a history of mental illness, was indicted earlier this year for the kidnapping, rape and murder of a 3-year-old Bowling Green boy. Wood County Prosecutor Alan Mayberry will seek the death penalty for Umbel when the trial begins Jan. 11.

The motion to suspend administration of antipsychotic drugs to Umbel was originally submitted on Nov. 25 by his attorneys, John Duffin and Adrian Cimerman.

While Umbel has been treated with such drugs as thiorazine and prolixin both before and after his arrest in March, the current motion suggests the drugs are no longer necessary.

Dr. David Zick, a Wood County Mental Health Center psychiatrist who treated Umbel before his arrest, testified it would be necessary to conduct another evaluation to determine if continued drug treatment is necessary.

"I haven't seen Mr. Umbel in a clinical setting since March," Zick said. "If the question is whether or not he needs to be on medication, then [re-evaluation] would be appropriate."

After determining that another psychiatric evaluation would

U.S. is morally obliged to aid starving Somalis

During the political campaigns this year, voters expressed one overwhelming desire -- it's time to put America first and rebuild our country.

The theme was resonant and powerful, and George Bush's inability to express how he would meet America's needs first was the main reason he failed to get re-elected.

Now, it seems Americans have reversed course. Polls show people overwhelmingly in favor of sending aid and military troops to Somalia even though our own streets are filled with hungry people, our economic might is decaying and our schools are dysfunctional.

Well, add our names to the list of hypocrites because The News supports President Bush's decision to come to Somalia's rescue.

It is disgusting and appalling that the only way the starving people in Somalia can (we hope) get food is with the help of military force -- but it is necessary.

Necessary because no human being should have to watch his or her body waste away to nothing while others gorge themselves on the fat of society. And while some would selfishly insist it's time for us to take care of our own and let the rest of the world fend for itself, it is simply inhumane for Americans to stand idly by while other human beings starve.

Maybe if there were more time, another solution could be worked out. But the Somalis don't have this luxury -- about 300,000 have already died from starvation, and the two million at risk need the supplies now.

And then there's the question of "Why us?" Why does the United States have to send 28,000 soldiers to Somalia when France, Italy, Zimbabwe, Nigeria and Kenya are offering much less in troops and aid?

It would be great if we could put all our effort into improving the quality of life here first, and help solve everyone else's problems later. Unfortunately, this bury-your-head-in-the-sand attitude just won't work. Other U.N. countries have been hurt by the global recession and cannot pledge much aid. And, like it or not, we are still a world power and have to take the responsibilities that go with it.

The U.S. has more troops and firepower than any other international force, making it an obvious choice for intervention during a crisis. Bush has also said that "some crises in the world cannot be resolved without American involvement, that American action is often necessary as a catalyst."

Never has this idea been more true than with the current situation in Somalia. The United States has tried to avoid military intervention by simply trying to aid the starving country with a delivery of food and supplies. However, these efforts have been in vain as the supplies have only ended up being looted and stolen by the Somali clans that now rule the population.

It is clear that the U.S. needs to do something that will once and for all put a stop to the starvation that is rampant there. If the only way to bring this about is to send troops, which will ensure that the people get fed, then that is what the U.S. must do.

We have the resources and the capability to alleviate the problems facing Somalia, or at the very least we can ensure that 30,000 more people don't have to starve before action is taken.

Laws needed to make equality real for gays

The BG News:

I am writing in response to the article, "Homosexuality warrants no exclusive-rights laws," printed in the Dec. 2 edition of The News.

Mr. Van Ness asserts that homosexuality is a lifestyle choice. Let's humor him for a moment and accept that sexual orientation is a matter of choice. The logical corollary to this idea is that heterosexuality is also a choice.

I would like to know on which morning Mr. Van Ness woke up and decided to be heterosexual? It is ridiculous to believe that a homosexual would make such a decision. Besides, what person would decide to be discriminated against?

Equating homosexuality and smoking is laughable. Smoking is restricted on this campus and in other places because of health impacts. There are no negative health impacts to homosexuality, and anyone who still links homosexuality to AIDS should read the latest data on the group in which AIDS is spreading the fastest -- heterosexual males.

In one respect, Mr. Van Ness is right; homosexuals are afforded equal protection under the Constitution. In theory, equal protection is given to everyone, but to make it real for homosexuals, legislation must be passed to add sexual orientation to the list of items in anti-discrimination statutes. This is what was done for disabled people in the Americans with Disabilities Act, and this is what must be done for homosexuals.

My final issue with Mr. Van Ness is his reference to Barbra Streisand as "Ms. Yentl." Why choose the film Yentl to refer to Ms. Streisand in a derogatory manner? Could it be because she was Jewish? Or perhaps because she was a woman trying to develop her intellect in a society which forbade it?

Surely, Mr. Van Ness was not inferring that Ms. Streisand's statements should be given less weight because she is a Jewish woman. I am just speculating, but Mr. Van Ness's reference reveals less about Ms. Streisand and more about Mr. Van Ness.

GOOD LUCK

I was the dream-weaver, but now I can make sense

"... I hate to break it to his fans
But Johnny Ace is dead
Yeah, yeah, yeah..."
-Paul Simon

No more school. No more books. No more teachers' dirty looks.

The semester screams to a halt like a cold, Bowling Green wind against a big, brick wall (no doubt apportioned by the same folks who gave us the NEW Hayes Hall, the NEW Fine Arts Annex and the NEW fieldhouse that together could pay off the federal trade deficit). We students stand at the wall, our faces warped, mangled in the wind, counting down the days...

SOON, SOON, SOON. Three words on the mind of every red-blooded boy and girl who have struggled through five or six years of this malodorous dung known as college (like we have minds after that).

Personally, I'm amazed to have made it through this semester with only minor injuries. Had to drop a class. Had a bad cold. Sat through President Bush's whistle-stop, was harassed by a certain political candidate, survived the Atlanta Braves' NLCS victory, actually sat through an entire Billy Ray Cyrus tune without flinching, survived psychotic fans without the aid of a bodyguard, survived the College Republicans (oops, Hitler Youth) without the aid of a bodyguard (like it's a feat), made it through IPCO without once contemplating suicide...

I got a pay raise in August, got to class on time in September, got sick in October, voted in November and turned 21 in December. I got threatening letters from gutless cowards who would not sign their names and bills for magazines I don't even subscribe to.

So it's been a little hectic.

I have often contemplated just giving up and taking off. After all, I could use a vacation. A nice little trip to a quiet place with padded cells and shock treatment. Ah, to dream.

I think (yeah, I guess I can't say I) I just might spend the entire next semester trying to achieve a higher state of consciousness by consuming only cappuccino and raw oysters. Then again, maybe I'll pass.

Or maybe I'll lock myself in my room with a year's supply of Sal-

tines and a dozen Cary Grant movies on VHS.

Or maybe I'll front a Positive Sweat tribute band.

Nahhh... but just imagine. I could just ponder things for 16 weeks. Kind of like I did the last 16 weeks, but kinder and gentler.

I've been doing this column thing for a year and a half now and I must say it will be a relief to spend my Monday nights not having to worry about filling enough space and not offending the wrong people.

Yeah, I like propagandizing the community once a week on Page Two. I like the pseudo-power, the assassination attempts, the free food and wet bar, but...

On to other things.

I've got this friend, let's call him Wally. He came up to me the other day and said, "Y'know, to get a grip on what your columns say, I have to consume an ounce of dry nutmeg, half a pint of tequila and enough tranquilizers to kill a quarterhorse."

"Well, Wally," I told him. "This is college. I know professors who are more decadent. Now shut up and drop your acid."

Another friend, we'll call him Bob (not that that's his name, I have to protect the innocent, you see), called me a few weeks ago.

"What's this 'Fear and Loathing' rot you're trying to peddle? I'm a recovering addict. Your columns make me go into flashbacks."

Well, to end what is probably a heated argument in every underclass residence hall, no, I'm not on drugs. At least not any good ones.

Last year, an English teacher asked me to explain one of my columns to the entire class. I'm like, "All right, Tom, but I don't believe even I know what this one is about."

I do believe I got an A.

Anyway, if you're reading this thinking, "Dag nevvit, I can't understand a cotton-pickin' thang that thar DeKatch boy comes up with," you are not alone. If you're reading this thinking, "Well, I'll be. Maybe we should call USG The Bursar Youth," you are on the right track. If you're thinking, "DeKatch is an anti-American communist sympathizer... and I love him," you are, or should be, a member of College Republicans.

Well, that's it, deadbeats. End of the highway is a big, dark, starless sky.

Scott DeKatch, a junior creative writing major from Youngstown, is defecting to Elgin, Ill. No tears. Please, no tears.

BG has most friendly students

The BG News:

I recently had lunch with a publisher's representative, Dave Eggers of St. Martin's Press, who is leaving publishing to pursue other interests.

At the luncheon, Dave said to me, "You know that I have been calling on the University Bookstore for the past nine years, and I visit college bookstores all over the state and part of Michigan, and Bowling Green has the friendliest students of any campus I have visited."

Well my first reaction was that I didn't have a reply; I was so flattered for the students. Before I could summon up a reply, Dave said, "I mean it. Bowling Green has friendlier students. Some campuses I visit I can't wait to leave, but I always look forward to coming to Bowling Green."

Well students, pat yourselves on the back; and while you're at it, pat yourself once for me because I agree with the man from St. Martin's -- you're great.

Professor named graduation speaker

by Jane Kilgore
student life reporter

The University's most recently named Distinguished Teaching Professor, V. Frederick Rickey, has been selected to deliver the winter commencement address Dec. 19.

"It is going to be a real interesting experience," Rickey said. "It is an opportunity to get to share some of my ideas with the students."

Rickey, a professor of mathematics and statistics, was named the fourth Distinguished Teaching Professor by the Board of Trustees last June. The honor is one of the most prestigious given at the University and recognizes outstanding performance in the classroom.

Rickey

"We are happy that the Distinguished Teaching Professor will be able to present the commencement [address] this year," said Philip Mason, vice president of university relations. "I am sure that the graduating students will be in for a real treat."

For nearly 25 years, Rickey has influenced the teaching of mathematics at the University. He designed and developed the "Calendar of Mathematical Dates," a compilation of historical research that offers a day-by-day accounting of events that have shaped the world of math. Teachers throughout the world use the development to make math lessons more interesting to their students.

Rickey has been active in the Mathematical Association of America for the past 20 years, and has served as the chairman of the American section of the International Study Group for the Relations Between History and Pedagogy of Mathematics. Also, he is the American Mathematical Society's representative to the history of science section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The mathematics professor has delivered more than 200 lectures on a variety of topics to audiences ranging from fifth-graders to professional mathematicians from around the world.

"It is really fun to go to a conference where people know you by name,"

Rickey said. "There is a lot of satisfaction in that."

Rickey has published many professional journals and has served in the editorial realm for the Newsletter of the International Study Group on the Relations between the History and Pedagogy of Mathematics, The Philosophers Index and the Notre Dame Journal of Formal Logic.

In 1988 he received the George Polya Award of the MAA for his article, "Isaac Newton: Man, Myth and Mathematics," which is one of the highest honors a mathematician can receive.

Earlier this year, Rickey was named the first winner of the Award for Distinguished College or University Teaching presented by the Ohio section of the MAA. In addition, he is a four-time recipient of the Excellence in Teaching Mathematics Award (1991, 1988, 1975 and 1971) presented by the campus chapter of Kappa Mu Epsilon mathematical honor society.

"The things that have meant the most to me are the awards that I have received from the students," Rickey said.

Rickey received his bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Notre Dame.

"Teaching is something that I really, truly enjoy," Rickey said. "It is most interesting to watch students mature throughout their years of college, intellectually as well as physically. It is a wonderful experience to be a teacher, and that is really the thrust of what I am all about."

Police blotter

□ A man reported to University police that someone stole his shoes while he was ice skating at the Ice Arena Nov. 29.

□ Jerry L. Matthews, 21, Sandusky, was arrested for breaking and entering and burglary Wednesday. According to the police report, Matthews allegedly kicked down his ex-girlfriend's Second Street apartment door and assaulted her. He has been incarcerated in the Wood County Justice Center on $12,500 bond.

□ A woman reported to police she was approached by a man in a store in the 400 block of East Wooster Street who was handing out pink slips that said "I'm blind - give $1 donation." When the woman declined, the man allegedly grabbed the paper out of her hand, showing he was not blind. When police questioned another business on East Wooster Street, employees reported a similar incident in which a man claimed to be deaf and asked for donations.

□ Matthew J. Dalicandro, 19, 428 Compton, was cited for criminal mischief Wednesday on the corner of Ridge and North Enterprise streets. According to police, Dalicandro was with a large group of people, all carrying cans of spray paint, and he was spray painting an "O" and an "X" on the back of a stop sign at the intersection. Police said when an officer questioned him, Dalicandro said he was part of a fraternity that was on its way to paint the rock on campus and he saw nothing wrong with painting the traffic sign too. Dalicandro allegedly admitted to police he had been drinking earlier.

□ A man reported his 1991 Chevrolet Cavalier was stolen Friday while it was parked in the 500 block of East Reed Street.

□ Edward C. McNeal Jr., 20, 237 Compton, was cited for operating an unsafe vehicle Friday night.

□ A woman reported a rake was thrown through the rear window of her vehicle while it was parked in a municipal parking lot Saturday. Although her purse and other belongings were sitting on the seat in the car at the time, nothing was taken, police said.

□ Christopher L. Robinett, 19, Rudolph, was arrested for criminal damage and disorderly conduct with persistence and while intoxicated Saturday. According to police, Robinett allegedly punched out a window of his former residence in the 1000 block of Fairview Avenue in an attempt to enter. He was treated for cuts to his hands at the Wood County Hospital before being transported to the Wood County Justice Center.

□ William D. Walrath, 18, 208 Compton, was cited for possession of an alcoholic beverage in a motor vehicle, underage consumption and possession of a fictitious operator's license Saturday on South College Drive. Police said Walrath was stopped by an officer because of a non-working headlight. When the officer approached, he allegedly could smell "a moderate odor of alcohol" on Walrath's breath. During a consent search, police allegedly found an opened can of beer stashed under the passenger seat and some unopened beers in the back. Also, the officer allegedly found Walrath's driver's license with the date of birth altered to make him appear to be of legal drinking age.

□ Kris E. Shaffer, 18, Warren, was cited for disorderly conduct Saturday in the 500 block of Leroy Avenue, police said.

□ Romiro Salaz, 37, 410 N. Main St. Apt. C, was cited for DUI, driving without headlights and disorderly conduct Sunday. Romiro was taken to the Wood County Justice Center on $1,350 bond, police reported.

□ A patron of Howard's Club H, 210 N. Main St., reported he was hit over the head with a flashlight by one of the employees working the door Sunday, police said. No charges have been filed yet.

Court blotter

The following people were recently indicted by the Wood County Grand Jury. All arraignments took place in Wood County Common Pleas Court.

□ Samuel J. Stamper, 22, Toledo, was indicted for theft after being arrested Sept. 6 for allegedly stealing a cordless screwdriver from Hills Department Store in Northwood. The charge was raised to a third-degree felony after it was learned Stamper has five previous theft convictions.

According to police reports, Stamper was observed by a store employee stuffing the power tool down his pants. When confronted outside the store, Stamper allegedly fled on foot but was quickly chased down by the employee and other bystanders.

Stamper complained of chest pains when police arrived and was transported to St. Charles hospital. He was able to slip out of the hospital when a nurse turned her back on him to treat another patient.

Stamper will be arraigned Dec. 14, at 9 a.m., in Judge Donald DeCessna's court.

□ Mark Monks, 39, Jasper, Ala., was indicted on two counts of carrying a concealed weapon, third-degree felonies, and one count of trafficking marijuana, a fourth-degree felony.

According to court records, both a .25 caliber pistol and a .357 caliber revolver were loaded when Monks was apprehended.

Monks will be arraigned Dec. 14, at 9 a.m., in Judge Gale Williamson's court.

□ William Jenkins, 30, Sarabee Preston, Md., was indicted on one count of aggravated robbery with specification. The specification is a result of Jenkins' alleged use of a firearm. The charge is a first-degree felony.

An arrest warrant was issued Dec. 3.

□ Edward Orlet, 39, Toledo, was indicted for aggravated vehicular assault, a fourth-degree felony.

Orlet will be arraigned Dec. 21, at 8:30 a.m., in Judge Charles Kurfess' court.

□ Larry Benner, 40, Hillsdale, Mich., was indicted for failure to appear, a special felony. According to the indictment, Benner never showed for his felony theft trial.

An arrest warrant was issued Dec. 3.

□ Brian Van De Walle, 19, Westerville, was indicted on one count of carrying a concealed weapon, a third-degree felony. Van De Walle allegedly was carrying a loaded 9mm handgun on Sept. 12.

He will be arraigned Dec. 14, at 9 a.m., in Judge Donald DeCessna's court.

New president to block testing at Ohio incinerator

by Jim Abrams
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Clinton administration will seek to block final-stage testing at a new hazardous waste incinerator in Ohio until Congress investigates potential threats to the environment, a spokeswoman said Sunday.

Vice President-elect Al Gore is likely to make the announcement Monday on stopping operations at the $140 million incinerator in East Liverpool, Ohio, said Marla Romash, spokeswoman for the Clinton-Gore transition team in Washington.

She said Gore, joined by congressional colleagues from Ohio and West Virginia and Sen. Harris Wofford, D-Pa., will ask for a General Accounting Office investigation into the plant's licensing.

Until that investigation is completed, the new administration will hold off issuing a permit for a final test burn. The plant already has a temporary test burn permit.

Gore, expected to be the Clinton administration's point man on environmental issues, visited the Ohio River Valley area during the campaign and promised the people there he would look into their concerns about the plant.

Gore's staff "spent the last several months taking a very serious look" at the issue, and decided an investigation by GAO, an arm of Congress, was warranted, Romash said.

She said that in a larger sense, the move to curtail operations at the incinerator shows the Clinton administration will bring "a real commitment to protecting the environment and environmental laws."

The New York Times said in Monday's edition that Gore's announcement will set up a confrontation between the new administration and the Swiss-owned company, Von Roll Inc., that operates the plant.

Julia Bircher, a spokeswoman for the company, said plans for an initial test burn next week would proceed.

"It seems totally contradictory to Gore's own thesis that science and advanced technology should be used to solve critical environmental situations," Bircher said early today. "It also seems contradictory to the backbone of the Clinton-Gore campaign regarding jobs, cleaning up the environment and revitalizing our economy."

The Environmental Protection Agency in 1983 issued a permit to Waste Technologies Industries to build the commercial hazardous waste incinerator capable of burning 60,000 tons of toxic waste a year.

Construction began in 1990 but the project has been plagued with protests from local residents joined by environmental groups such as Greenpeace.

Opponents say the incinerator is located just 300 feet from the nearest neighborhood and 1,100 feet from an elementary school on the bank of the Ohio River.

They say the level of toxic emissions has been understated and the state and federal EPAs never accounted for the Ohio River Valley's typical air inversions, which would let toxic emissions accumulate in the atmosphere.

Supporters argue that emissions into the air will pose no threat to the environment, while generating an estimated $4 million in state and local taxes and 100 permanent jobs.

They add that Von Roll has updated incineration technology extensively, and that the plant will typically accept byproducts from chemical, rubber, paint and manufacturing plants, but not PCBs, asbestos, chemical warfare gas, radioactive waste or waste from overseas.

Women take spotlight in Congress

by Katherine Rizzo
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Eighteen women who will be new members of Congress said Friday they intend to focus their work on the Head Start program, family leave legislation, abortion and sexual harassment.

Rep.-elect Deborah Pryce, a Republican from Ohio, said they took about an hour to put together a priority list and position statement on the issues.

"I think perhaps it's just the way women work," she said. "The dynamic of the group when the room was totally female was very different than other meetings I've been in. It's hard to explain."

The 15 Democratic and three Republican women said their first priority will be to get all the money needed for the Head Start program to provide pre-kindergarten classes for poor children.

In the past, lawmakers have given the program enough money to serve only a fraction of eligible children.

The women also said they would push for passage of legislation guaranteeing workers the right to have an unpaid leave when

"This is a bully pulpit. We as leaders need to make certain that sexual harassment is addressed."

Deborah Pryce, U.S.
Representative-elect

there's an illness or some other family emergency. But they didn't take a position on any particular bill.

They won't be speaking with one voice when it comes to the fine print, said Rep.-elect Marjorie Margolies-Mezvinsky, D-Pa.

"We have very different opinions on a lot of these issues," she said. "We are not saying here that we support the same piece of legislation."

The women also didn't go into any detail on abortion, but said they all call themselves "pro-choice" and want to see Congress write into law what the Supreme Court ruled in Roe v. Wade.

That way, the basic right to an abortion could not be reversed by a future court case. Their other priority was to impose laws on Congress banning sexual harassment in the workplace. It is a timely issue in light of allegations by 15 women who said Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., made unwelcome sexual advances over two decades.

"Our feeling is that all of us should be held accountable the same way that anybody else is," said Margolies-Mezvinsky. "It is not enough just to vote correctly."

Margolies-Mezvinsky, a former television reporter who spoke for the new House women, was careful to avoid giving the Senate advice about how to handle the Packwood case.

"We want it all to be brought to light," she said, but "We think it's premature to talk about a direction at this point."

Pryce said the congresswomen-elect are determined to see through their plan to make Congress obey the same sexual harassment laws as the rest of the country.

"This is a bully pulpit," said Pryce, drafted last week to be interim president of the Republican freshmen. "We as leaders need to make certain that sexual harassment is addressed."

Women next year will be outnumbered 388-47 in the House and 94-6 in the Senate.

households favored the ban and five opposed it.

Those results contradict a study done by Crim Street resident Ben Strange that indicate 33 adult residents oppose the ban while 7 favor it.

Fischer questioned Strange's results, saying the city's survey may be more accurate because it was administered anonymously.

"To me, the survey itself still carries some weight," he said.

Other Crim Street residents offered their own recommendations to the committee during the hearing.

Three residents who spoke favored the commission's decision to reinstate the two-hour limit.

However, resident Steve Toney urged the council either to maintain the ban or begin open parking in the area, saying the two-hour ban is regularly violated.

"Either make it no parking or open parking," he said. "The two-hour limit is a joke."

Council member Scott Ziance

said he believes residents are undecided about the issue and added he believes the council should lift the ban.

"I don't see an overwhelming vote by the residents to restrict parking," he said. "So in light of that, I'm in favor of letting people park there with restrictions rather than completely taking it away."

The regular city council meeting was postponed for 30 minutes to allow residents to present opinions.

During the council meeting, members moved to officially accept a $349,000 federal Community Development Block Grant that will be used to fund projects including the city's housing rehabilitation program, street and sidewalk repair and planning for an industrial park on Dunbridge Road.

The city will also give $10,000 of the funds to the Downtown Business Association and use $40,000 for a revolving loan fund to attract new businesses to the area.

Umbel

be needed in order to make a ruling on the motion, Judge DeCessna continued the hearing until the prosecutor's office could make arrangements for a re-evaluation, possibly using Dr. Zick.

DeCessna also set a date for a hearing on another motion in the case, this one moving to dismiss the death penalty specification included in the original indictment.

The motion, submitted by Duffin and Cimerman, claims the death penalty specification denies Umbel his constitutional right protecting him from "cruel and unusual punishment" under the Eighth Amendment. It also claims the prosecutor, by obtaining Umbel's confidential health records, "destroyed his ability to prosecute this case at the level of reliability required in a death [penalty] case."

Mayberry said such motions in death penalty cases are common and often an attempt by defense counsel to build a foundation for future appeals.

The hearing on that motion is scheduled for Dec. 14 in Judge DeCessna's court.

House GOP leaders veer right

Republic Representatives aren't about to compromise with Clinton

by Jim Drinkard
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- House Republicans put a more combative stamp on their leadership team Monday, narrowly electing a staunchly conservative economist to replace a moderate as their No. 3 party official.

"Compromise is not going to be in the vocabulary" in the session of Congress that begins Jan. 5, complained Rep. Sherwood Boehlert, R-N.Y., a member of the party's shrinking moderate wing.

As both parties convened to elect their leaders for the coming two years, GOP members elected Texas Rep. Richard Armev over incumbent Californian Jerry Lewis to chair the House Republican Conference, the organization of all GOP House members. The vote was 88 to 84.

Incumbents won easily for the rest of the top posts in both parties: House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash.; Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo.; and Majority Whip David Bonior, D-Mich., were returned without opposition. Minority Leader Bob Michel of Illinois and GOP Whip Newt Gingrich of Georgia also

"I see confrontation as a tool. When it is necessary, I will use that tool."

For Foley, an erudite, low-key moderate who rose to leadership without the political bumps and scrapes most ambitious politicians suffer, the coming year will be a test. Democrats hold substantial majorities in the House and Senate and, for the first time in 12 years, control the White House.

President-elect Clinton was arriving in Washington late Monday for meetings Tuesday with congressional groups responsible for enacting his programs: leaders, committee chairmen and new members.

"I see confrontation as a tool," said Armev, who is best known in Congress for his grasp of economic issues and his outspoken belief in Reagan-style supply-side theory. "When it is necessary, I will use that tool."

Armev said he owed his election in large part to the 47-member class of freshman Republicans, who ran on platforms of change and reform and were more inclined to make changes in the party leadership.

"They are looking for more activism," Armev said of his colleagues.

"The style is going to be [that] we will cooperate with the new administration but we will not compromise on some important principles," said Rep. Jim Nussle, R-Iowa, an activist lawmaker who has made reform of Congress an issue. Others said Michel and Gingrich made similar pledges in their acceptance speeches at the private meeting.

"We no longer have the White House; we no longer have our Cabinet officer friends we can call. Suddenly we're out there all alone," Boehlert said.

"Compromise is not going to be in the vocabulary, at least not early on," he said, adding that such a development would threaten to lock Republicans into a permanent minority status.

"Unless we recognize that the overwhelming majority of Americans are moderates, then we are destined to be the minority party forevermore," said Boehlert.

The GOP was not the only group laying down markers as the House began organizing itself. The 24 women of the 110-member freshman class, 21 Democrats and three Republicans, issued their legislative priorities for the year: full financing for Head Start, protection of abortion rights, family and medical leave legislation and protection against sexual harassment for congressional employees.

"This is a group that is changing the face ... of the body," said Marjorie Margolis-Mezvinsky, a newly elected Democrat from Pennsylvania.

Meanwhile, House Speaker Thomas Foley promised a productive partnership with President-elect Clinton as Democrats anointed him and his leadership team for two more years.

"Americans, having chosen the Democratic Party to lead the country ... have placed a heavy responsibility upon us," Foley told reporters. "I sense a new beginning, renewal ..."

Along with Foley, D-Wash., Democrats re-elected Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., and Majority Whip David Bonior, D-Mich. They also expanded the leadership team to include a Hispanic, Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M., as a fourth chief deputy whip.

Later, a Democratic leadership panel ousted Rep. Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., as chairman of the Appropriations Committee after 14 years at its helm. Whitten, who is in poor health at age 82, was replaced by 83-year-old Rep. William Natcher, D-Ky.

Emerging from the closed-door meeting, Whitten told reporters, "I just talked from the heart. I expressed my regret that they had failed to continue me in that position."

If you can read this, Earth dodged a bullet

by Paul Reccer
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- Look out, Earth! Toutatis is coming! Whoops! There it went. Whew!!

A one-to-two-mile-wide asteroid was to have whizzed past the Earth around midnight (EST) Monday, missing the planet by just 2.2 million miles, a hair-thin margin of safety in celestial terms. A direct hit, say the experts, would produce a global disaster.

The asteroid was discovered in 1989 by a French astronomer and named Toutatis after a Gallic god called "protector of the tribe."

Astronomers say if it collided with the Earth, Toutatis could actually be destroyer of the tribe.

"It would be catastrophic if it hit the Earth," said Don Yeomans, a Jet Propulsion Laboratory research astronomer. "It would throw up enough material to shut down the sunlight and the plants would have died. It wouldn't have wiped out everything, but millions and millions of people would expire."

Yeomans said Toutatis is on an orbit that carries it across Earth's orbit every four years, passing the planet at varying distances. In 1996 and 2000, the asteroid will miss by a wide margin. In 2004, Toutatis passes within one million miles -- about four times the distance between Earth and its moon.

That, said Yeomans, will be the closest approach for at least 200 years, the limit, so far, of the calculations.

Astronomers say Toutatis is not the only alien planetoid that the Earth needs to worry about.

"There are millions of truck-sized objects out there," said Yeomans. "And there are thousands more of up to a third of a mile across. None of these pose a threat, because they would burn up in the atmosphere before hitting Earth."

Anything of a kilometer, six-tenths of a mile or bigger wouldn't completely burn up in the atmosphere and could cause major damage on impact with the Earth.

Yeoman said Toutatis, when measured against a fixed point in space, was moving at more than 85,000 miles an hour as flashed by the Earth.

The explosion of energy caused by Toutatis hitting the Earth at that speed would be difficult to imagine, experts say.

Eugene Shoemaker, a U.S. Geological Survey astronomer, said an object the size of Toutatis would gouge out a crater more than 30 miles across. Some material would be vaporized, while dust splashed high into the atmosphere would remain there for long periods of time, blotting out the sun.

If the asteroid hit an ocean, giant waves would roar far inland on virtually all continents, and then bounce from shore to shore, sort of like what would happen if an anvil were dropped into a bathtub.

Toutatis may not pose a threat, but over the next millions of years the Earth will not always be so lucky, said Brian Marsden of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass.

"There are about 3,000 objects a kilometer or more in size that cross the Earth's orbit," said Marsden. "There are lots in that size range that we don't even know about. Sooner or later the Earth will be hit by one."

"That's when it gets dangerous for civilization," he added.

Falcons rebound against the Panthers

by Mark DeChant
sports writer

The fans at last night's women's basketball game needed No-Doz to stay awake, due in part to the fact that visiting Wisconsin-Milwaukee played as if they had been using sleeping pills.

Using a balanced attack that overwhelmed the Panthers in the second half, Bowling Green picked up its first victory of the season, 88-69.

"I think we did a very good job concentrating," head coach Jaci Clark said. "We were concerned about holding our concentration over the whole period of the game."

The contest started slowly, as neither team could find its shooting rhythm. The score was 20-18 in favor of the Falcons with 8:59 left in the half. At that point, however, BG began an 11-3 run over the next 4:52.

Kristi Koester's three-point play with 31 seconds on the clock gave the Falcons their largest first-half lead, 38-26. The margin remained at 12 at intermission as the scoreboard read Falcons 40, Panthers 28.

The frontcourt duo of Talita Scott and Lori Albers led the way for BG in the first half, scoring 19 of the team's 40 points. Scott tallied 10 points on perfect five-for-five shooting. Albers was also a force down low. She chipped in with nine points and a team-high five rebounds.

"Talita had herself a very good game," Clark said. "Lori did a fine job, and did a good job running the offense."

Erica Young and Laurie Krajnik shared scoring honors for the Panthers. The pair scored seven apiece prior to intermission.

The Falcons shot over 50 percent (17 of 33) in the first period, while the Panthers could find the bottom of the net on only 33 percent (10 of 30) of their field goal attempts. BG also controlled the boards, snatching 25 caroms to Wisconsin-Milwaukee's 15.

As the second half got underway, the Falcons continued to showcase their inside game. Forwards Charlyne McClendon and Scott frequently found themselves with layup attempts, which they easily converted.

Clark said that in the second half the team showed an intensity that was absent from the previous contest, a loss at Ohio State.

"I think it was important to keep the pressure on them," she said. "We made excellent decisions working the ball into our half-court offense."

McClendon was the busiest Falcon forward, exploding for 10 second-half points in the paint.

"[McClendon] came in with very good intensity," Clark said. "She came in and she needs to be that kind of player off the bench, and that's what we were looking for."

The final 10 minutes of the game featured both team's reserve squads, and some fine efforts were turned in by the Falcons' bench.

"I think people that came off the bench did a good job of making sure that we didn't lose the flow of the game, and even picked us up," Clark said.

Clark said the opportunity to play a number of different combinations was great experience for the freshmen.

"I think that one thing [the freshmen] didn't do well was that they got caught up and tried to pressure the rebound," she said. "But other than that, they did a fine job of running their offense and staying settled."

BG's lead never dipped below 19 in the second half of the period, which was the winning margin.

Can BG play with the Fab Five?

As far as college basketball goes, the Michigan Wolverines probably couldn't have done any better of a job to thrill and excite fans than in the NCAA tournament last season. And this season, they're going to be just as dominant.

They enter the week in sixth place after a loss to Duke, Saturday. They followed with Detroit Mercy Monday, and now they face another non-conference test, Bowling Green.

What? The Falcons against the Fab Five. Tell me another joke.

But is it really a joke? Will the Falcons actually be able to play on the same court as the Wolverines, let alone attempt a win?

Why not?

The Falcons have upset the Big Ten before, twice. Michigan State could certainly give the Wolverines a few pointers. During the 1989-90 season, head coach Jim Larranaga took his squad up to East Lansing and defeated the Spartans 81-79. The following season, fifth nationally ranked Spartans came to Bowling Green to return the favor, but were once again surprised by an inspired Falcon squad which won 98-85.

And if they can possibly find that intangible spark that puts an athlete and a team on another level, the Falcons could compete with Michigan and possibly surprise the sophomores from the north.

What your not going to see from the Falcons is a few players that probably could have made a big difference. Out with slow healing injuries are guard Vada Burnett and Ralf Melis and guard Mike Swanson who was injured in the Heidelberg game with a pulled hamstring. Also factor in that Shane Komives won't be eligible until the Cleveland State game, and the Falcons are going to have to pull together every scrap of talent to match-up with the Wolverines.

Glen Lubbert

Larranaga's best bet will be to stay with the starting line-up he's used so far this season - i forwards Shane-Kline Ruminiski, Floyd Miller, Matt Otto and guards Ray Lynch and Michael Huger. A change now would probably just mess up any cohesiveness the team has been able to put together.

The only problem with that starting line-up is height, or lack thereof. Kline-Ruminiski, 6'8", Miller, 6'7", Otto, 6'5", Lynch, 6'4" and Huger, 5'11" won't match-up too well with Michigan's towering sophomores. Juwan Howard, 6'9", Chris Weber, 6'9", Ray Jackson, 6'6", Jalen Rose, 6'8" and Jimmy King 6'3" will be looking in their shadows for the Falcon squad.

But with the right match-ups, the Falcons might be able to contain the Wolverines to some degree. Look for Huger to match-up with King since Rose would just post-up all day on the pre-season All-MAC guard. Lynch will be the man to take on Rose, but even there, it'll be tough to contain Rose. And that's really the key. If Rose can be rattled, the rest of the Wolverines will follow.

Another match-up that could cause some problems for the Falcons will be the inside game. Basically, Michigan's offense relies on its big men. They throw it up and dominate the boards. Against Duke, the Wolverines had 17 offensive rebounds, and if they do that against Bowling Green, there won't be a prayer.

What the Falcons can do is double down when Michigan starts throwing it inside and hope the Wolverines throw it back out since their perimeter shooting can't compare with their dominant front court game.

No matter what the numbers say, its all going to come down to intimidation. If the Falcons stay focused and don't get rattled by the big kids, it might get interesting. After all, Michigan will be playing its third game in five days when it hosts BG. And, they may not have any reason to get up for the game, since its such a small school to them.

But that's what makes college hoops so awesome. The fact that Bowling Green can go up against such a power house with nothing to lose is what makes the game one of the most exciting sports around.

Can Bowling Green play against Michigan? I'm not sure it entirely matters. Win or lose, the Falcons are going to be the real winners here. Thanks to the Wolverines, BG will get the necessary boost it needs to bring the team together for the tough MAC season ahead. But it will be up to the Falcons to use this experience wisely, because no one knows better than the Wolverines how important experience can be.

Chargers surprise AFC

by Dave Goldberg
AP football writer

It's not the scenario envisioned at the start of the season.

With three weeks to go:

The Pittsburgh Steelers have all but wrapped up the AFC Central and could get the home field advantage throughout the playoffs.

The San Diego Chargers, who haven't made the playoffs in a decade, are in position to win the AFC West.

The Green Bay Packers, who haven't been in the playoffs for two decades (save for the expanded strike-caused 1982 version) remain in position to beat out the Washington Redskins or Philadelphia Eagles for an NFC wild-card. Or, believe it or not, catch the Minnesota Vikings for the Central title after a 2-5 start.

"At the beginning of the year, I'd have laughed if you'd have told me we'd be in this situation," Green Bay quarterback Brett Favre said after Sunday's 38-10 demolition of Detroit.

"I feel like a kid in a candy store," said Gill Byrd, the often overlooked San Diego cornerback whose first nine years were spent on teams that were 52-88 - b and was 52-92 after the Chargers started 0-4 this year.

"It's something I've worked all my career for, although if I had written the script, we wouldn't have started 0-4."

That 0-4 start has now turned into 8-5, tying the Chargers for first place in their division after Sunday's come-from-behind 27-21 win in Phoenix combined with the Kansas City Chiefs' 28-7 loss to the Los Angeles Raiders.

And that last-place schedule keeps helping. The Chargers' three final games are 4-9 the Cincinnati Bengals at home and the 6-7 Raiders and 2-11 Seattle Seahawks on the road, giving them a good shot at 11-5.

Pittsburgh now has the best record in the conference at 10-3 after the Buffalo Bills' second straight loss. And despite losing quarterback Neil O'Donnell with a broken leg Sunday, they still have veteran Bobby Brister to hand off to Barry Foster and an easier schedule than the Bills.

As for the Packers, the NFC's version of the Chargers, they've now won five of six and finish at Minnesota, which has a brutal closing schedule.

Volleyball team saves the best for the NIVC

by Mike States
sports writer

What an emotional roller coaster the Bowling Green volleyball team has ridden the past two weeks.

Just one week ago, the Falcons suffered their most disappointing defeat of the season by losing in five games to Ball State in the Mid-American Conference tournament and ending their chance to participate in the NCAA tournament.

However, Bowling Green's season was not over yet as it received an at-large bid to play in the Fourth Annual National Invitational Volleyball Championship at Kansas City this past weekend. And did they EVER play.

Not allowing the previous week's defeat to cloud their minds, the Falcons rampaged through the NIVC tournament by winning their first five matches only to fall in the championship match to a strong Washington State team.

Head coach Denise Van De Walle was elated with the team's performance in the tournament.

"This ranks up there with the feeling when we beat Western Michigan to snap its 98-match winning streak and winning our first conference title on our own floor. It is that exciting to me," Van De Walle said. "This is a national tournament, the NIT of volleyball. It is incredible to have a chance to advance to the finals in a post-season tournament such as this and to play our best volleyball of the season when it really counted."

The NIVC consists of 20 teams across the United States. Five teams receive automatic bids from winning their conferences, including teams from the Southland, the Great Midwest, the Midcontinent, the Missouri Valley and the North Atlantic. The other 14 are given at-large bids and all the teams are grouped into four pools.

Bowling Green, seeded second in its pool, surprised the NIVC tournament by winning all four matches in its bracket to advance to the tournament's semifinals.

In a 9 a.m. match on Friday, the Falcons, after falling two games to one, stormed back to beat a fiery Delaware squad 14-16, 15-5, 9-15, 15-4, 15-9. Later that day, the team won its second match by defeating Virginia Tech in four games, 15-7, 12-15, 15-4, 15-5.

Bowling Green played its third match the next morning against Texas-Arlington. In a thrilling fifth-game finish, the Falcons held off their opponents to win 13-15, 15-7, 15-4, 8-15, 18-16. Then BG won the pool by defeating Fresno State (the favorite to win the pool) in a tough four-game set, 11-15, 17-15, 18-16, 15-5, to advance to the semifinals.

"I think we were in a very tough pool, especially having Fresno State, since they expected to be in the NCAA tournament," Van De Walle said. "Every one of the teams in our pool were champs of their division or finished in the top three."

It did not get any easier for BG as it had to face Minnesota in the semifinals. Facing a team bigger and stronger than they, the Falcons were still able to hold off the Golden Gophers and move on to the NIVC Championship game, 5-15, 15-11, 15-9, 15-11.

Playing just a little over an hour after the Minnesota match, the Falcons lost a tough championship match to the tournament favorite Washington State Cougars in three straight, 13-15, 9-15, 9-15. The Cougars, ending their season 27-10, went 6-0 by winning all 18 games in the NIVC tournament.

"I think Washington State was more physically dominating at the net than we were and they served the ball very well," Van De Walle said. "They just had too much size and we able to outgun us."

Of the 12 players selected for the All-Tournament team, senior setter Carey Amos and senior outside hitter Angellette Love were picked. Amos totalled 285 assists and broke the NIVC's single-game hitting percentage record by attacking at a torrid .867 against Texas-Arlington, as well as breaking the hitting percentage record for the entire tournament (.466). Love tallied 73 kills and 73 digs to earn tournament honors.

Other BG players played well enough to be selected to the All-Tournament team. Senior outside hitter Holli Costein had 96 kills and 71 digs and senior middle hitter Mitzi Sanders added 68 kills. Junior Nicky Mudrak set a tournament record for most blocks with 45, including a game-high of 12.

The 5-1 record the Falcons earned at the NIVC improved their overall mark to 30-8. The 30 wins breaks the former record for wins (29) in a season by a BG volleyball team that had been set last year.

Van DeWalle

Cleveland in the hunt for postseason action

by Chuck Melvin
AP sports writer

CLEVELAND -- Now that two easy wins have moved the Cleveland Browns' record back above .500, coach Bill Belichick acknowledged Monday for the first time that his team has a shot at the playoffs.

"Obviously, we're in the hunt for postseason play," Belichick said. "But you know, we can't control what the other teams are going to do and what their schedules are."

By winning their three remaining games against Detroit, Houston and Pittsburgh, the Browns would finish 10-6 and give themselves a reasonable chance for a wild-card berth. Should AFC Central Division leader Pittsburgh also lose its final three - including the season finale against the Browns at Three Rivers Stadium - the Browns would tie Pittsburgh and win the division title by virtue of a sweep of their two games against the Steelers.

One significant problem looms for the Browns, even if they win all three games. They still trail both Miami and San Diego by one game and are tied with Denver in the race for the three AFC wild-card berths - and each of those three teams has beaten the Browns, meaning Cleveland loses the tiebreaker with any of them in a two-way tie. The Oilers, also in the wild-card chase, pose less of a problem, assuming the Browns beat them in two weeks, because Cleveland won the first meeting.

Belichick, however, won't get drawn into discussing the various playoff scenarios.

"The only thing we can control is how we perform in the next three regular-season games," he said. "That's what we're focused on. That's what we've been focused on all year, taking it one day at a time, play well on Sunday, knowing that if we do that often enough, things will work out in the end."

The Browns' 37-21 victory over Cincinnati on Sunday, coming on the heels of a 27-14 victory over Chicago, pushed their record to 7-6 and ensured Belichick of his second consecutive season of improvement. Cleveland went 3-13 in 1990, the year before he arrived, and 6-10 last year in his rookie season as a head coach.

The improvement this year has occurred despite the loss of Bernie Kosar to a broken ankle for nine games. Kosar returned for the Chicago game.

"I thought at the beginning of the year this team was significantly better than last year's team, and regardless of how many games we would have won, I still think we would have felt that way," Belichick said. "It's obviously pleasing and rewarding to see a better team and also have more victories."

"I have a lot of confidence in this team. I've had it all year."

The BG News' Athlete of the Week

In a rebounding effort, the volleyball team went to the final round of the National Invitational Volleyball Tournament before bowing out against Washington State.

Leading the way for the Falcons was senior setter Carey Amos who broke the NIVC single-game record with an .867 hitting percentage against Texas-Arlington. For her efforts, Amos has been named The BG News' Athlete of the Week.

In six games, she was able to total 285 assists. She also broke the overall hitting percentage for the NIVC tournament (.466).
